He is very competent, but also humble, helpful and clear. His primary language is Spanish. Lucky first met Javier when he came to Miradero to perform in the Fiesta's charreada. She asked for his help in learning a number of riding tricks, including the one-legged balancing pose struck by her mother on horseback on the circus poster, which Javier identified as la volada. Maricela took an interest in Javier as well, and competed with Lucky for his affections, showing off her skills speaking Spanish and dancing with him. [1] By the time of Turo's midnight Harvest Hunt, for which Javier returned to Miradero to join the boys' team, Maricela had moved on to be interested in Lucky's Cousin Julian, who was named Javier Jay. Although Julian Lucky taunted throughout the match, Javier remained a gentlemen, often offering to help the girls. [2] The day before an earthquake struck Miradero, Javier spent a morning in Miradero helping Happy work on her horseriding tricks, in the process literally sweeping her off her feet while showing off his skills. He revealed that he would compete in a rodeo the next day, but it had to be held all the way in Silverlode, and Lucky's father did not allow her to skip school to go. Javier promised to help Lucky with another trick when he came back. [3] Javier accompanied the PALS and Mr. Granger on a mustang drive from Miradero to Rancho Conejo, in which he injured his leg, requiring Lucky to make a splint for him and give him stitches. She apologized for the weird scar he probably would have. He told her he thought she was a real vaquera now, and held her hand. [4] Later that year, Mayor Gutierrez invited Javier to lead the Miradero Eve parade, and Javier and Hacheta spent many months perfecting the horse line's choreography for a charro dance. Javier invited the PALS to participate, but demanded that they practice New Year's Eve. Lucky, busy fulfilling each on her list of resolutions, had performed too little exercise and bungled the dry run for the mayor. Her missteps knocked over the other horses like dominoes and sent Javier to a pie table, which went flying, ruining them all. Javier was mad at Lucky, and she took herself out of the parade, angry him further. When Lucky returned later that night for the New Year's Eve party, Javier forgave her, and then he confessed how much she liked him, he said he liked her too. The clock struck midnight and they kissed. Afterwards, Javier wished Lucky a happy New Year. Behind the scenes, Javier is voiced by Andy Aragon.
